An advisor to Fortune 500 executives, Larry Olsen has invested the last 30 years researching, adapting and teaching developments in the field of performance-driven neurology. As a recognized international speaker, author and executive coach, Larry's expertise is based on the hands-on achievement drawn from professional success within major corporations as well as entrepreneurial businesses. Larry understands that if an organization is to succeed, its people must come first - no shortcuts, no excuses. He tells us, "It's not the size of the organization that makes it successful, but rather the size of the vision within each individual that makes or breaks a company."

Aperneo provides the tools necessary to propel individuals and organizations beyond their current expectations and reality. By understanding the brain's role in accelerated performance and capitalizing on the recent scientific breakthroughs of the new brain/results paradigm, Aperneo helps to unleash the innate ability to achieve record-breaking performance while living what most are only seeking - a balanced life.
